FAQ'S

How do I choose the right size of split system for my room?

- 1. Measure the Room: First, measure the length and width of your room in meters. Multiply these two numbers to find the room's square footage (m²).
- 2. Consider Room Characteristics: Think about factors that might affect the room's cooling needs, such as the number of windows, the amount of sunlight that enters, and the level of insulation.
- 3. Use a Cooling Capacity Chart: Refer to our cooling capacity located within the description of our advertised air conditioner. This will help you match the room size (in m²) to the appropriate cooling capacity (measured in kilowatts - kW) of the split system.
- 4. Choose the Right Size: Based on the chart, select a split system with a cooling capacity that matches or slightly exceeds the room size. Avoid getting an oversized unit, as it may lead to wasteful energy consumption and discomfort. On the other hand, an undersized unit may struggle to cool the room adequately.
- 5. Seek Professional Advice: If you're unsure about the calculations or which size to choose, contact us for expert guidance and assistance in selecting the right split system size. please reach out to our team. We are here to help you make the best decision for your cooling needs and ensure your comfort throughout the year.

What is the difference between a split system and a ducted air conditioning system?

What is the warranty coverage for the air conditioner and installation?
